

A SOUL'S SUNRISE

I am the businessman, I am the boss
I am my company, money is my god
I am harsh and cynical, I have to be
I am what convenience demands, I am all in my greed
I am full of reasons, here is my list: family, mortgage, mistress, routine

You are there, unknown but I recognize you You don't ask, don't take, don't insist You seem to look across my shield, my bones
You know the behind-the-scene me
You want to be the sparkle in the night of my soul

I was there to defy, to execute, to succeed
I was the emperor of evilish sins
I was there to walk on the others and randomly hit
I was like a shark in the dark, my preys were my means to outlive
I was all that I wouldn't have been, I was all but me

THE LINK

Missing your soul
Oblivion filled in by memories
And possibilities of a future

IN MY BLOOD

There are pauses in which I don't think of you all the rest is you, in the images that remind me of you,
the colours of hope, the light breeze of a Parisian night, a sunny day I didn't appreciate and you did and now I do.

You are all through my minutes, my desire I have a clear memory of a body I only dreamed of, which I loved by definition since it enveloped you, my beloved soul and soulmate, ray of something in the otherwise nothingness of my life.